

Christian Streib new Director IT Central & Eastern Europe

ESCHBORN (28 APRIL 2006). Christian Streib (34) becomes the new Director IT for the Region Central and Eastern Europe effective 1 July 2006. Streib succeeds Heinz Jennewein, who will be leaving Carlson Wagonlit Travel at the end of June.

Long years of experience in business travel

After completing his apprenticeship as travel agent, Streib began his career at Carlson Wagonlit Travel (CWT) in 1996. After working from 1996 to 1999 in Operations at the TSC Leinfelden-Echterdingen, he held positions in various divisions.

From 1999-2001 he was Head of the Information Delivery department at CWT in Germany. In this capacity he was responsible for the consolidation of all customer travel data and conducting the resulting analyses. In the following years he worked in the field of account management, first as International Key Account Manager and then as Strategic Account Director EMEA. During this time he was in charge of several large international accounts for CWT.

Since 2005 and up to his present change of position, he was Director Sales & Account Management, Operations Eastern Europe. His main task in this position was to drive the convergence of the Central & Eastern Europe zone and to implement uniform processes across all countries.

Christian Streib's career path has been marked by leadership ability, well-structured work skills and strong customer orientation. August Gossewisch on the appointment of Christian Streib: "I see one of his main goals as introducing CWT customers to technological developments and adapting these IT solutions according to their needs."

Christian Streib comments: "With my professional knowledge in the various business travel fields, I would like to support the CWT customers' efforts to optimize their business travel processes through the use of the latest technologies. This can be accomplished through ongoing adaptation of the high IT standards found in CWT's in-house processes."
